The Northerner for 1959

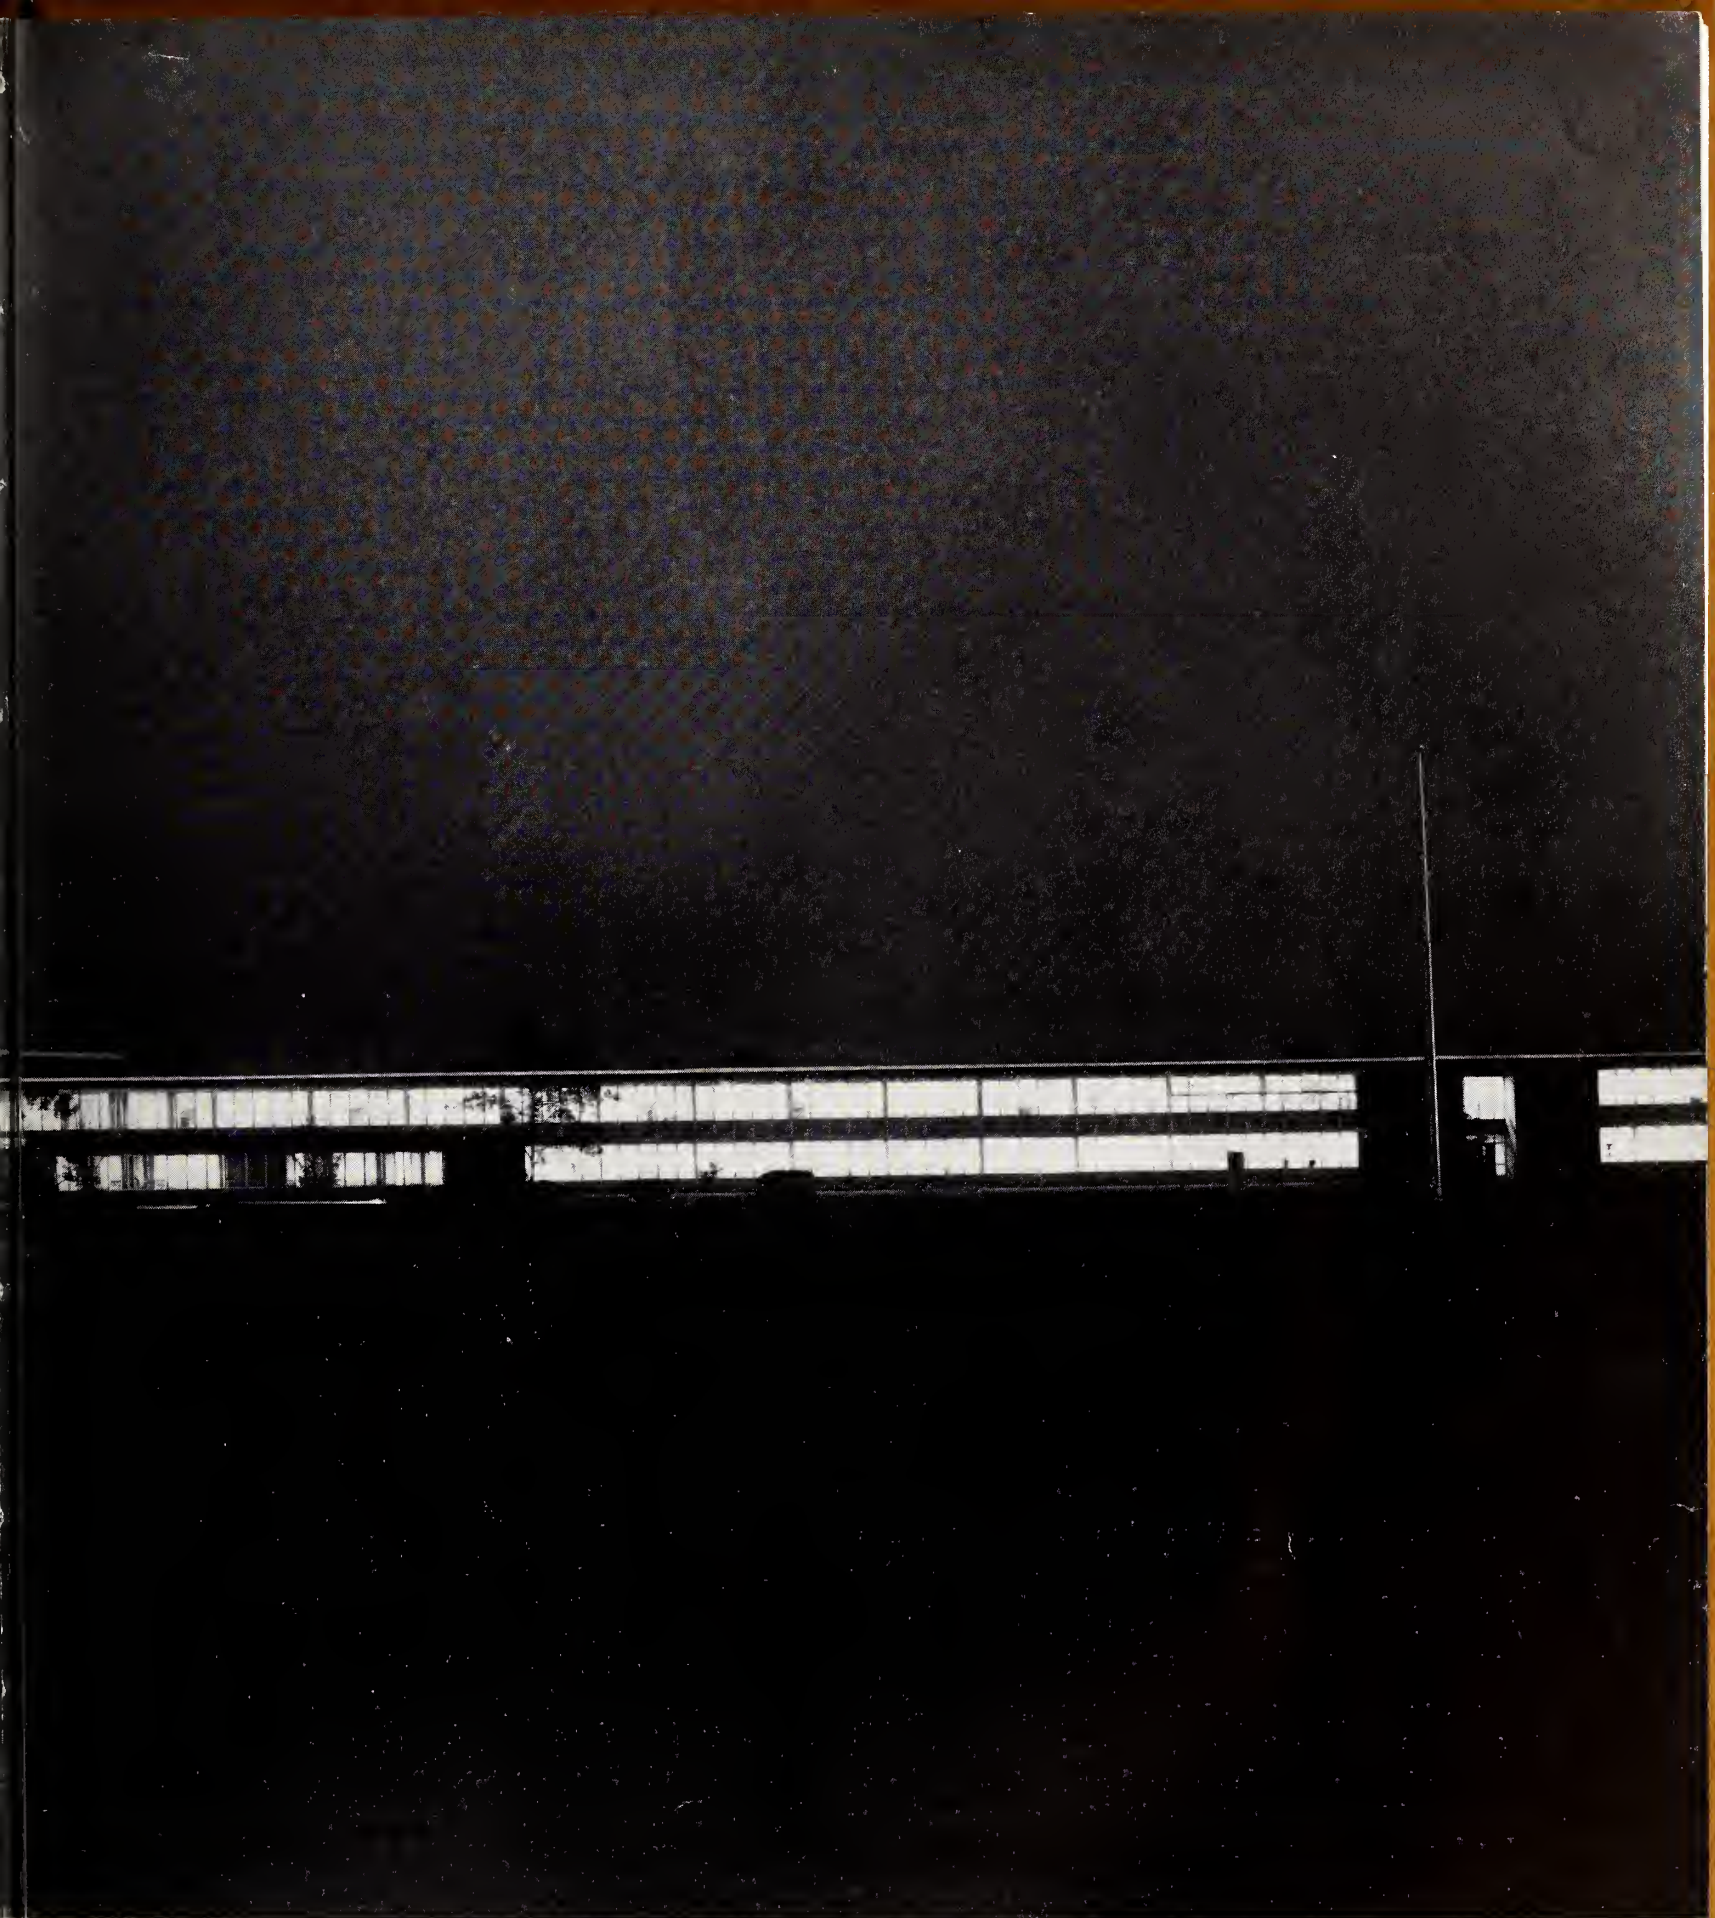

North Central High School

Metropolitan School District of Washington Township
Indianapolis, Indiana

At night, brightly lighted North Central impresses passersby on Westfield Boulevard.

People from all over the country come to visit ultra-modern North Central.

The heart of the school's activity is in a half-moon shaped Student Center.

At The End Of Three . . .

We review our progress and find that we have advanced

Three years ago, in September, 1956, North Central opened its doors. Since then progress has been made by giant steps rather than by a normal progression over a period of years. In fact, administration, faculty, and parents can look back on these three years with pride in their accomplishments.

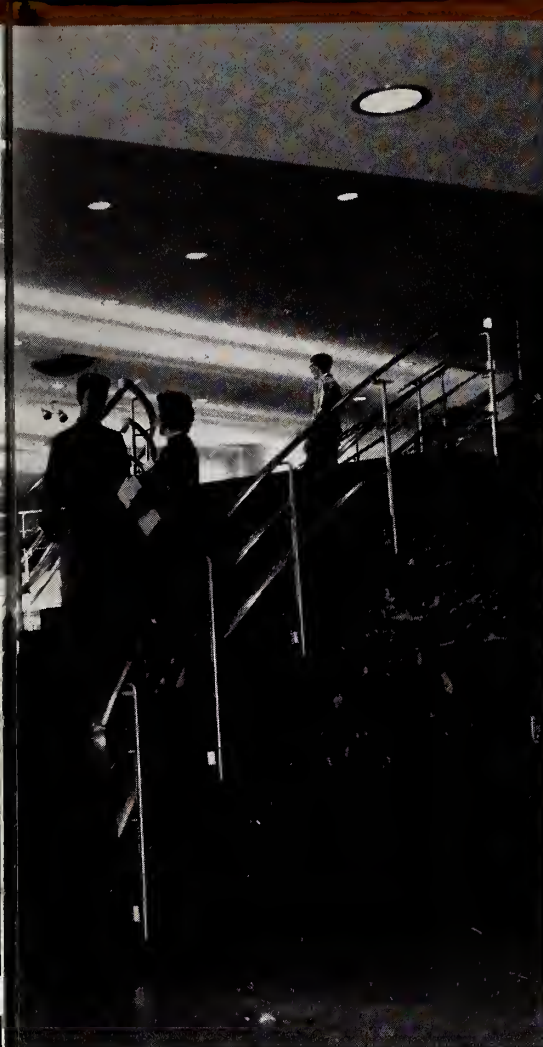

In this short period of time, a building constructed of steel, bricks, and stone has acquired a personality — for a building comes to life through the people who are housed in it, and through the history and traditions that become a part of it.

The student body has become ardent boosters of North Central. Faculty and administration are joined in the common goal of building instructional levels to meet the modern requirements of a space age. Parents are molded into a powerful unit that provides a solid backing, financially and spiritually, for the new school.

Enrollment has zoomed from an original figure of 1083 to 1385 in these three years, as families attracted by the ideals and objectives of the new school moved into the community. In January, 1959, an article appeared in a local newspaper, stating that it would soon be necessary either to build a new school in the township or add on to the present one. Such rapid expansion had not been foreseen originally.

Even before American schools became spurred to improve and strengthen their own requirements as a result of Russia's much publicized "stiff" educational program, North Central had established a high standard of scholarship.

From the beginning, college level classes were included in the curriculum. Not only is extensive training offered in mathematics and science but classes for the academically talented in English, language and social studies permit qualified and interested students to work at a faster pace than the average. A special Developmental Reading course, set up for seniors, helps to bridge the gap between college and high school. In this course, as in many other activities, students learn how to take notes efficiently, budget time for studying, and do research work.

Orientation programs and careful counseling methods, with consultations held among parents, pupils, and counselors, guided North Centralities, these three years, into courses that sends 71% of them confidently into colleges and universities of high standards, and the rest into the business world with skills to earn their livings.

One of the most notable accomplishments in the three year period was the establishment of a situation in which young people are inspired to achieve a record of scholarships unprecedented in a new school.

Shortly after this picture was taken, the flagpole area was beautifully landscaped with year-round greenery.

Building a feeling of "togetherness" was a gradual process at North Central but by the end of three years a great deal had been accomplished toward unifying students and faculty in a sense of "oneness."

The feeling had to be built up by many things. It was a matter of sharing experiences both in and out of school, studying and reciting together in classes, planning projects and dances, and rehearsing for plays and musical programs.

Strenuous election campaigns built up interest in the three class organizations. Club meetings during home-room helped North Centralites to form new friendships with others who shared their hobbies. After-school activities gave science students the feeling of belonging to an unofficial club as they conducted research experiments on their own time and exchanged wise cracks with fellow workers. Other groups met in the library to share information as they prepared for term papers and book reports.

Boys in the Athletic Department developed a strong team spirit as they practiced nightly on the field or in the gym for competition with other schools. When successful they sometimes spontaneously acclaimed one of their members but the spirit of "togetherness" was what really won the game.

On weekends, North Centralites planned social events together, worked with classmates on special assignments, or took field trips.

A long range plan for academic excellence began to bear fruit at North Central this year when 17 students won places in the finals of the national merit scholarship testing program. This is the largest number of finalists to win this honor in any Indiana high school this year. Four became Merit Scholars.

North Centralites show a genuine interest in getting as fine an education as possible. The average pupil's schedule includes 5.3 subjects a day, all of them carefully selected through counselling and with the written approval of the parents. Three hundred ninety-five pupil enrollments in "X" classes are recorded; 143 in English, 72 in foreign languages, 25 in social studies, 107 in mathematics, and 48 in science. The average number of credits earned by the first graduating class (1957-58) was over 37 which is 3 over North Central's requirements and 5 over the state's.

Seventy percent of the pupils' time in school is spent studying academic subjects. Of the other 13%, 11% is in the required areas of physical education and health and safety. Only 19% is in non-academic classes that are not required by the State Department, but many of these subjects are valuable to both college bound and business major people. These include such electives as drafting for pre-engineering students, typing for business or personal use, and home economics for prospective teachers or homemakers. Music and art present their cultural, as well as professional training for both leisure-time and educational endeavors.

Building North Central traditions was an essential part of organizing the school, for traditions are the agency that binds a school together with loyalty, and keeps a nostalgic memory fresh in the hearts of alums.

Within three years an impressive list of annual events and customs has been compiled. Parents and students collaborate on an annual "Back to School Night" and Family Jamboree. College and Career Day give upper-classmen a foretaste of life to come. Classes campaign for officers, hold spirited elections, select rings, and are measured for caps and gowns. Sophomores decorate a huge tree for Christmas, juniors give the traditional prom and Spectacular, and seniors end the year with a picnic, a kiddie party, and a grad dance.

Royalty are elected for the prom, the spring sports dance, and the Military Ball. The Yearbook staff, striving for the unusual this year, elected a Duke and Duchess for the ADD dance.

Honor Society, Quill and Scroll, and Thespians hold elections. The Latin Club celebrates its annual Floralia. Winning honors began to be a tradition as achievement contests, and scholarship competitions again placed the name of North Central high on the nation's records of outstanding schools in 1958-59.

Sports banquets, pep sessions, the faculty-letterman game, and student mixers are on the regular agenda. ROTC boys drill before army officers and a student audience in the spring.

An operetta, an all-school play, the music department's band and vocal concerts, as well as convocations, make good use of the auditorium. In three years, traditions have become a distinct part of a North Centralite's busy life.

Extra-curricular activities have become set in their pattern by the end of North Central's first three years. Organizations regularly meet during an activity period which was set up two years ago as a 45 minute interval between the second and third hours in the morning. A minimum of projects require after-school time.

Three honorary chapters were installed during the last three years, Thespians for top actors, Quill and Scroll for top journalists, and National Honor Society for top ranking scholastic achievers.

Service clubs and various individuals have contributed time, money, and effort to helping improve the school and easing teacher's tasks.

Extension of knowledge has been the goal set by language clubs. Hobby enthusiasts have been given a chance to share their interests with others. Career-minded organization members have had a chance to meet successful people in their fields.

Musically inclined boys and girls have been given wide scope for their talents in invitational programs outside the school and in appearing before fellow students. The school has recognized its role in training young people in poise, knowledge, and wholesome activity.

Student council host to state convention

The monitoring system prevents wandering in the halls during the lunch periods. Tim Steele informs Dick Young and Judy Witham that they must remain in the Student Center.

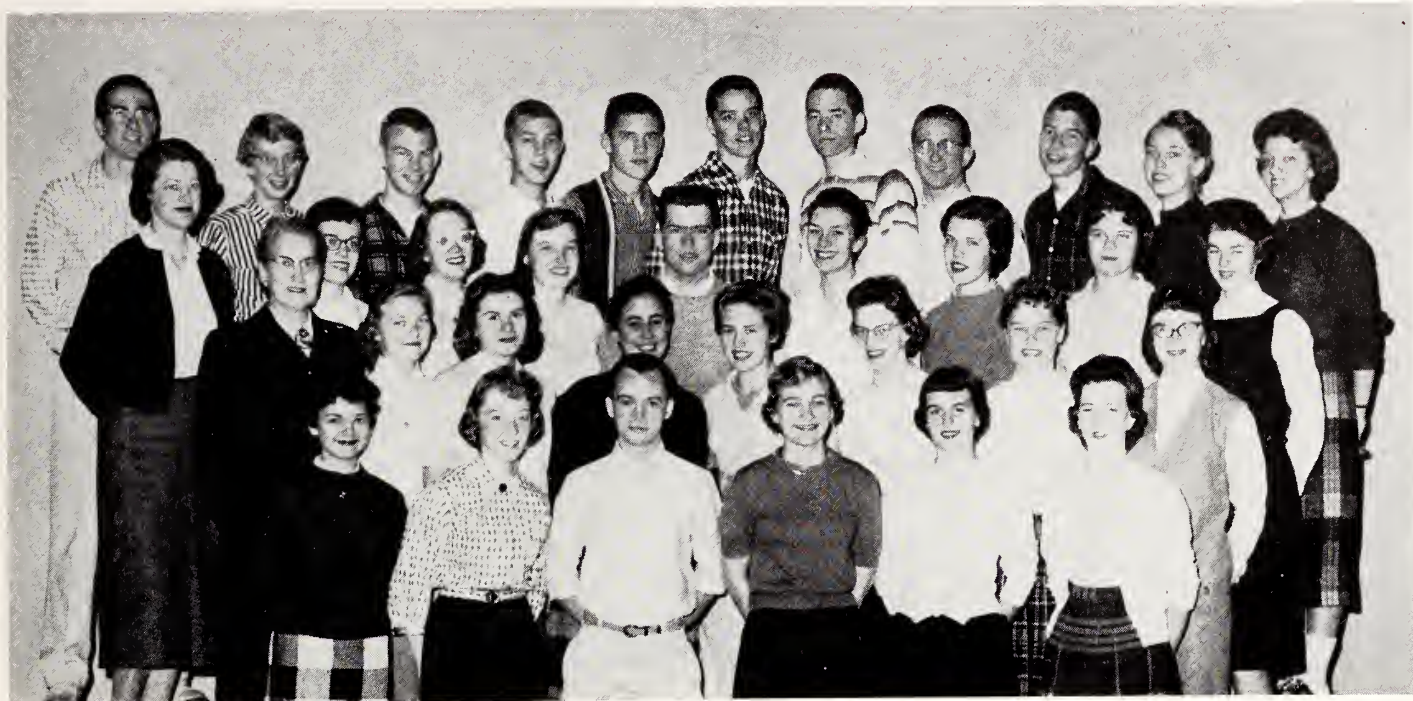

The Student Council began its third year of student government by acting as host to 1,051 pupils from throughout the state at the Indiana State Student Council Convention. Guests participated in discussion groups after council members had taken them on a tour of the building. Many long hours of hard work paid good dividends since this was said to be the best state convention ever held.

Every year the council members sponsor an all-school formal dance. This year the theme was "Christmas Sleighride." Don Foley and his Moodmasters provided the music.

Student Council members set up a monitoring system at each stairway during lunch periods to prevent students from wandering through the halls.

Numerous safety checks were organized and run by the Safety Council, continuing a practice started earlier. Only drivers of cars in good condition were given permission to park on the school lot.

Plans for purchasing an organ for the school were also set up this year.

Two honorary organizations are open to high ranking students who have good grades and who have outstanding records for achievement in the school.

Scholarship, leadership, service, and character are the standards required of those seniors and juniors who are elected to National Honor Society.

In this, the second year for the organization, the group is trying to become more active as an intellectual and service club. As a cultural project, a few of the members attended the Indianapolis Symphony concert. As a service project, members made themselves available for tutoring of slow pupils.

The Society has also discussed the possibilities of raising requirements for the high honor roll.

High ranking journalists have an opportunity for achieving recognition by being elected to Quill and Scroll, an international honorary organization for students of journalism.

Requirements are that a prospective member be in the upper third of his class, a junior or senior, and give outstanding service for one year.

SENIOR GIRL'S LEAGUE PLANNING BOARD: Janet Humston, Brenda Moffett, Cathy Duck, Joni Tischer, and Carol Shuttleworth govern the activities of the senior girl's group, such as choosing someone to escort guests through the building. Miss Geraldine Bagby, (not shown) is the sponsor of the League.

Hi-Y and Senior Girl's League donate service

Two service organizations meet the demand for more student help around school.

Senior Girl's League is a group dedicated to be of service to the school and consisting of all senior girls.

When help was needed to serve meals to 1,051 visitors attending the State Student Council Convention, Girl's League members assisted. They also manned the punch bowl during the Military Ball, escorted guests through the building and helped out in any emergency.

The League's planning board is working on setting up a permanent Big Sister program for all new students. In a school in which so many persons enroll during the year, such a project has special value.

Only boys are entitled to membership in Hi-Y, a service organization devoted to helping out when needed. Projects sponsored include a mixer, candy sale, and a car wash.

Key Club sets pace in first year of service

Key Club projects this year ranged from a "pencil drive" to planning Italian dinners. The sale of pencils, which had a printed schedule of the basketball games on each one, netted the club a nice profit.

During the Christmas season, the boys took canned food to the needy at Flanner House. In the early part of January they helped interest advertisers in the North-erner. As a springtime activity the club planned and carried out several car wash projects. Before the Spectacular, Key Club members sponsored a dinner featuring all kinds of Italian foods.

A plan to make the cafeteria a more organized eating place inspired the club to run a cafeteria campaign. They carried this out by featuring posters asking pupils to keep the floors clean and to put their trash in the containers.

Requirements for entrance into the club are, a 2.25 average in all subjects and a good recommendation from the teachers. Only boys are eligible.

Officers for the club's first year were Jim Halverson, president; Tim Steele, vice-president; Ken Porter, secretary; and Larry Barrett, treasurer.

Sponsor is Mr. Wilbur Richards.

Key Club officers meet in the office of Mrs. Ruth McClure, head of the cafeteria, to discuss the menu for the club's Italian Dinner to be held the last night of the 1959 Junior Spectacular.

In a small obscure room in the upper hall of B wing, a class called News Bureau gathered and wrote stories for Indianapolis newspapers. This group was in charge of all school publicity in the local papers.

They competed with twenty-nine schools around the city who also pour news into such papers as The Indianapolis Times, Teen Star, and The Indianapolis Star and News.

Despite rough competition, the class has put North Central first in county schools with the amount of coverage in the Teen Star, and third in the city and county. They have missed having stories in the Indianapolis Times special school column only three times in three years.

News Bureau and all other persons enrolled in the Journalism Department are eligible to attend workshops at Indiana University in the summer, Ball State in the spring, and Franklin in the fall. They are also invited to a Coke-Teen party sponsored by Theta Sigma Phi, and to the Teen Star's Correspondents dinner.

In the spring, an outstanding boy and girl journalist are honored at the Merle Sidener luncheon.

Northern Lights headlines school news

The Northern Lights, the school's newspaper, has had more than its share of difficulties. Printing press trouble was a frequent cause for delay during the first two years. This year marked improvement in the situation and delivery was made to the sixth hour classes every other week.

Student reporters gathered and wrote school news. Picture coverage was made by Tom Ransburg, official yearbook photographer, or Mr. John Shirley, the sponsor. The paper is published in North Central's own printshop, which is run by Mr. Phillip Mann, a professional printer.

'59 Northerner staff sets goal for 'All

'58 was a good year for the Northerner because that book was the first to win an All American.

"'59 will have to top it," the current staff said as it set out for this goal.

Publishing an annual is a complicated affair. There are problems with scheduling pictures, fitting copy, and stretching dollars. Advertising was used as an additional revenue for the first time last year and continued in the current book.

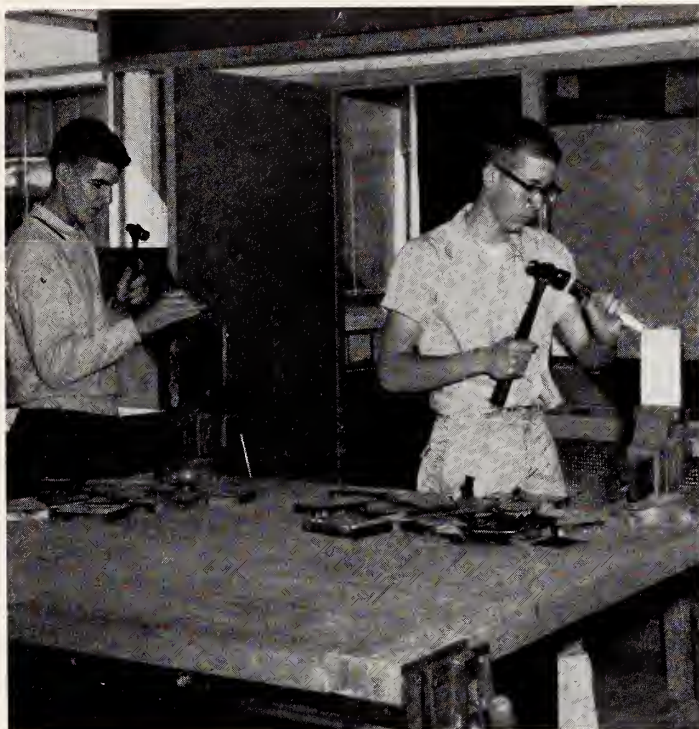

The ADD (Annual Duke and Duchess) dance was originated to help raise money for the '59 book. Betsy Traylor and Don Foley were chosen Duke and Duchess and given plaques to commemorate the event.

Chrysanthemums were sold — disastrously — at the first home football game, which was washed out by a heavy rainfall before the flowers were all sold.

At the end of the year a popular Autograph Dance was held where yearbooks were given out. By the time the parents saw the Northerner, it was scarcely recognizable through an overlay of written names.

After the music stops, students linger on, signing yearbooks and gabbing with their friends. Typical was this sight at the Autograph Dance.

Publishing a yearbook is not all taking pictures and writing copy. As a money raising project, Carl Norman and Steve Voris prepare old engraving cuts for sale.

K.P. duty is never done. After the ADD Dance, Gail Griswold and Judy Edwards help remove decorations and get the Student Center back to normal. This is the first year for a Duke and Duchess election.

North Central's newest honorary society, National Thespians Troop 1851, was formally introduced to the school at an initiation ceremony held the night of January 14 in the school auditorium. Seventeen persons became charter members of the club.

New members became eligible by earning ten points in dramatic participation, or by working as assistants in the production of a play or musical. After initiation, a Thespian works for further points to make an Honor rating which entitles him to a special recognition pin.

A preliminary step to being elected to Thespians is membership in the Proscenium Players (drama club). This provides the necessary experience to earn points.

Thespians helped on all theatrical productions during the year. As a newly organized group, they compiled a permanent constitution to guide future activities.

Paul Troup was elected president, Lynn Hall, vice-president, Judy Lybrook, secretary, John Clair, treasurer, and Margie Bitner, clerk. Mr. William Lord, Dramatics Coach, is the sponsor.

Thespians complete first year as Troop 1851

When the new Thespian sponsor, Mr. Lord, announced that the first officers were to be elected, members knew they faced a difficult task. It was essential that leaders of the group be well-versed in all phases of the theater as well as being good administrators. Paul Troup, a transfer Thespian from South Bend, was the choice for president. Judy Lybrook (far left) became secretary, and John Clair, treasurer. Margie Bitner (far right) was elected clerk. Lynn Hall (not shown) is vice-president.

Bright red sweatshirts were the "uniform" worn by bustling stage crew members as they worked diligently on sets for school productions. The Art Department provided the designs from which the crew constructed the flats.

Productions for which the crew provided scenery this year included "Annie Get Your Gun", a play given for the Family Jamboree; all the sets for the Junior Spectacular; and the All-School play, "Charlie's Aunt", which was presented in the late spring. Members also assisted on special auditorium programs by setting the stage and manning the switchboard for the lights.

Many sophomores enrolled in the organization as school opened in the fall. They, and the members who served last year, joined a sixth period class in Stagecraft to get further training.

Chairman for the year was Lynn Hall who succeeded Al Burgan, lost by graduation. Frank Cable became business manager.

The new sponsor of the stage crew is Mr. William Lord who has worked with the Avondale Playhouse. He also is the person who originally installed the lighting system in North Central's very modern and excellently equipped theater.

Old and new members learned to work well together as they built sets for the Spectacular. Mr. William Lord, sponsor of the crew, oversees the construction of a special piece of scenery for one of the acts.

A large number of boys and girls desiring experience in both producing and performing in plays, joined the Proscenium Players, making it the second largest club in school. It boasted over 200 members who were divided into groups of ten. These groups presented a series of one-act plays during the year for the practical experience and for the enjoyment of other members.

Besides these productions the group sponsored an All-School Play, "Charley's Aunt" which was presented in the Spring. Last year's All-School play, "The Gramercy Ghost" was also sponsored by the club.

The main purpose of the drama group is to stimulate an active and intelligent interest in the theatre.

Officers held over from last year were Connie Zimet, president; Bobbi Mathers, vice-president; Judy Kinnear, secretary; Joni Tischer, treasurer; and Pat Janes, historian. Sponsor is Mr. William Lord.

Proscenium Players assist school talent

One of the first presentations in the Players One-act drama series was, "The Flattering Word", directed by Judy Lybrook. Cast members Lynn Watkins, Barb Ensley, Mary Buehler, Bobbie Jo Cohen and Bill Curry worked diligently to give a polished performance for their fellow club members.

Art Club gives art hobbies an outlet

The Art Club is open to anyone who wishes to express himself creatively. Enrollment in an Art Class is not required as a basis of membership.

The club helped to promote the Christmas spirit at North Central this year by drawing quaint animal cartoons encircling a large Santa Claus on the bulletin board outside the general office. Teachers used it to display their personal cards to the faculty. The members also designed contemporary cards using the popular "Nebbishes" (cartoon caricatures) as the center of attraction.

Some members also made clever posters for advertisement and decoration for the Family Jamboree held in November.

A commercial artist was invited to speak before the club to acquaint it with his profession.

Field trips, becoming more popular this year, inspired the club to charter a bus for a trip to John Heron Art Institute and to the scholarship Art Contest at L. S. Ayres.

STRING ENSEMBLE consists of Diane Collier, Carol Shuttleworth, Ann Jones, Joann Young, Lynne Thompson; Mr. Robert Schlatter, sponsor.

The marching band composed of both boys and girls, added color and dramatic interest to the half-time activities of all home football games this year. The group also made other public appearances both at school and in the city. They took part in the Thanksgiving Day program before the student body, and gave a winter and spring concert. Invitations to march in the Armed Forces Day and '500 Festival parades were accepted. Members also won honors in band, solo, and ensemble contests.

The Music Department's dance band sponsored an after-game mixer for which they provided "groovy" music. They also played at the Sweetheart Dance for parents, on February 14. Proceeds from the latter went to pay for band uniforms.

Music in a more conservative mood was furnished by the string ensemble for faculty teas. The members also entered solo and ensemble contests.

The halls of A wing ring with music when Mr. Don Martin and his choral groups, A Cappella, Counterpoints, and Girl's Ensemble, gather to harmonize their voices in a song.

This is Mr. Martin's first year at North Central. Since he has been here he has built the Music Department into a successful organization.

For the Family Jamboree, the department put on the musical comedy, "Annie Get Your Gun", in which Pat Janes and Steve Gibbs played the leading roles.

Counterpoints made its first appearance in September as a specialized group, singing for the Christmas program, assemblies, and for the Triangle Club meeting in January. They also sang for organizations outside of school.

The credit for an unusual attraction goes to Linda Hale who, along with several girls, has developed a modern dance troupe. Their appearances in the Christmas program and other school productions have brought a new conception of music for the enjoyment of North Central pupils.

Block Section backs Panthers with cheers

Block section members made a colorful contribution to all athletic games this year. Their new uniforms were designed with red fronts and white backs. While forming letters during cheering sessions, the girls leaned forward to form the pattern of letters and words such as "Hi", or N.C. White hats and gloves completed the ensemble.

Gretchen Erickson, Susie Elliott, and Kay Cooper made sure their outfits were properly arranged before going to practice (left). The letter N and the letter C (below) were plainly visible when members of the section leaned forward to present the white part of their costumes.

North Central's Block Section made a bright appearance in red and white shirts and white hats at all home basketball games performing animated cheers to spark the panther team.

Boosters and Pep Band arouse school spirit

"We're the biggest club in school," claim the members of the Booster Club. With a total enrollment of 609, the club has a right to "crow".

In addition to attending all the games to lend support to the teams, the club has purchased such needed items as shakers for the cheerleaders and emblems to put on the hats worn by the Block Section. They also used money from their treasury to pay bus drivers who used their own time to transport the girls to and from the games.

The club acquired a new mascot this year — a large furry black panther with a bright red bow tie around its neck and mounted on a movable platform.

The animal, which was imported from Germany at a cost of $100, was purchased with surplus money in the treasury of Crooked Creek eighth graders and was presented to the high school as their gift.

Not only the Booster Club but the Pep Band also promotes school spirit. Sitting next to the Block Section, this group of boys plays an accompaniment to the girl's cheers.

FBLA leaders look to the future

One of the most active clubs in school during the 1958-59 year was FBLA, North Central's chapter of the national organization of Future Business Leaders.

At home basketball games, members raised money for the club treasury by running a cloak check room for students and guests.

For Christmas, the group donated specially chosen gifts to be given to needy patients at mental hospitals.

The club sent its top business leaders to the State Convention which was held at Muncie in March of 1959.

Officers serving FBLA for the year were Nancy Sugars, president, Sue Kaufman, vice-president, Danny Johnson, treasurer, Barbara Schnittker, secretary, and Katherine Price, reporter.

The club is sponsored by Mr. Fredrick Holmes.

dent, meet in the student center to plan their club's field trip to the new Indiana State Teachers Building, downtown.

Future Teachers learn through experience

Experience is the best teacher. Club projects and a special class with credit, afforded an opportunity for FTA members to secure that experience. Seniors associated with the group could elect to become cadet teachers during the last semester, helping elementary and junior high teachers in the different township schools.

The first important activity of the club was a tea for the faculty held at the beginning of the school year in the Student Center. This gave some of the teachers a chance to meet one another for the first time, and others to reminisce about the last year. Refreshments of punch and cookies were served by FTA members.

Most of the group's meetings were devoted to panel discussions and movies on the various aspects of teaching. The discussions were conducted by the members themselves, which helped them understand each other's viewpoints about the profession.

At one of the meetings, Gisela Kohler, a junior from Lima, Peru, told the club about the educational system and facilities in her country.

Officers serving for the year were Nancy McDowell, president; Sondra Moon, vice-president; Ann Harper, secretary; Nancy Young, treasurer; and Cynthia Keeny, historian.

Hard at work planning an interesting meeting for their members are FNA officers, Sherri Sutton, president, Tamsin Lee, vice-president, Randi Palmer, secretary-treasurer, and Marty McKinley, corresponding secretary. Miss Mary Doyle, sponsor of the group, joined in the planning of the year's activities. The club is outstanding for its community minded projects such as selling bangle pins for T.B.

Future nurses practice community services

Future Nurses of America did much for the community this year. Members sold bangle pins to students to assist the Tuberculosis Association Drive and conducted a Red Cross membership drive in the home-rooms. The club also collaborated with the Home Nursing classes in their project of making stuffed animals to send to the children's wards in the city's hospitals.

To further educate club members in their chosen field, a trip to a mental hospital and one for retarded children was provided. During one of the regular meeting periods, several nurses from Indianapolis hospitals came to the school to join a panel discussion conducted by FNA members.

Recreational interests were taken care of by a Christmas party given before school closed for the holidays. A gift exchange was part of the fun.

Sherri Sutton served as the 1958-59 president of Future Nurses Association. Tamsin Lee was vice-president, Randi Palmer, secretary-treasurer, and Marty McKinley, corresponding secretary. Miss Mary Doyle, school nurse, served as sponsor.

A highpoint of the year came for FNA members when a special panel of student nurses from Indianapolis hospitals came and talked to the girls.

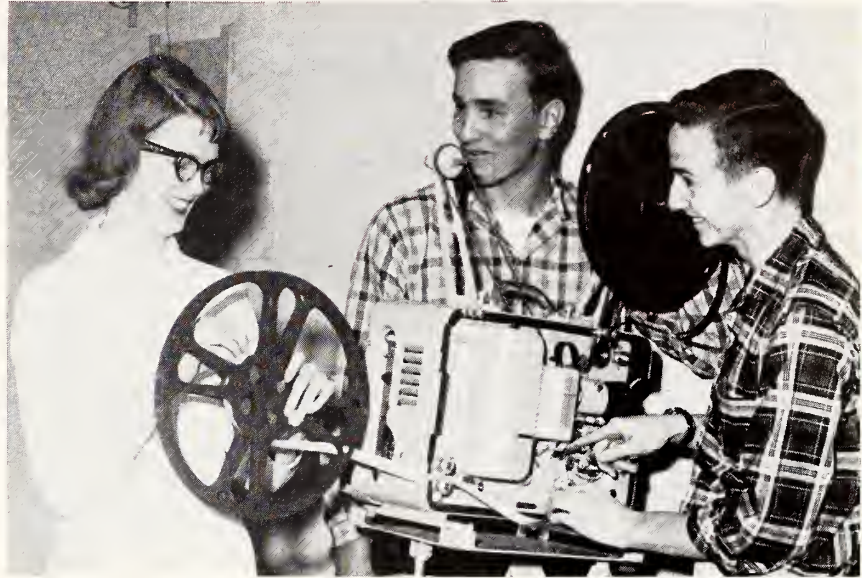

One of the most important service clubs in school is AVT (Audio-Visual Training). Members of this group are specially trained in the operation of audio equipment and of the movie and slide projectors. They are on call to operate the machines for teachers using films for supplementary classroom work.

The club occupies a room off the library where all special equipment is housed. This serves as an office also for record keeping and for distribution of daily assignments.

As a fund raising project, AVT provides music, broadcast over the loud speaker system, for disc jockey dances and basketball mixers. Proceeds go back into the business since the money is used to purchase new records for the school.

Officers for the group this year were Jerry Miller, president, Steve Dongus, vice-president, and Carole Gibson, secretary. Mr. Frank Rhea is sponsor of the organization.

Spanish Club officers Sandy Kuhlman, Jacquie Grebe, (bottom) Patsy Hadley, Diane Hurst, and Sue Hogan, (top) pause on the steps of the Student Center to chat before going to their next period classes.

All students who are taking Spanish are eligible to join the Spanish Club. The aim of the club is to form a more personal acquaintance with Mexico and Spain. During the year members increased their knowledge of the customs, people, language, and history by practical experience and association with the two countries.

Activities in the group during the two semesters were varied. Several talks were given by people closely associated with Spanish tradition.

At Christmas, members contributed canned goods for needy families. These goods were delivered to the Salvation Army for distribution. Later in the year, a dinner was held in the Home Ec rooms for members only. The meal was entirely composed of Mexican dishes, such as tacos and enchiladas, two Spanish favorites. After the dinner, slides of a Mexican vacation were shown by one of the pupils attending the party.

Officers included Sandy Kuhlman, president; Jacquie Grebe, vice-president; Patsy Hadley, secretary; Tom Hopkins, treasurer, and Diane Hurst, historian, and Sue Hogan, program chairman. Sponsors are Mr. William Bugher and Miss Wanetta Mullen.

Latin Clubbers travel 'Road to Rome'

Students who join the Latin Club find themselves members of a very busy and important organization. Because the club is so large, a special Senate is chosen to represent the entire membership on special club matters and to help plan all club activities.

During the year, three important activities were sponsored by the group. The first was the TRIP THROUGH HADES, which was the initiation of new club members. Second was a slave sale, held in March, and at which time volunteer "slaves" were auctioned off to members who paid for them with especially made Roman currency. The third, and most important activity of the club, was the Floralia, a spring festival celebrating the Roman May Day. In keeping with this old tradition, the celebration was held during the second week in May and was highlighted by the crowning of a Floralia queen and her court.

Officers presiding over the membership for the year were Bob Beckman, consul, Marcia Bauer, procounsul, John Hart, quaester, and Pam Du Bois, scribe.

Sponsors are Latin teachers Miss Cleo Kinnison and Miss Ruth Lesley.

Pupils learn of French tradition and customs

One of the most active organizations at North Central is the French Club. Members are given the opportunity to become personally acquainted with France and its traditions through correspondence with French pen-pals and talks given by people closely associated with the country.

At meetings, members participated in skits depicting famous French novels, viewed slides, and heard reports on the country and its history.

Just before the Christmas holidays, the group carolled French Christmas songs in the halls for the enjoyment of their fellow students. Also on the pre-holiday agenda of the club was a special dinner for members only. Menus were printed in French and pupils ordered from them, and carried on a conversation in the language during the evening.

Officers during the year were Sally Thompson, president; Judy Olmsted, vice-president; Dotty Henry, secretary; and Marjo Hunt, treasurer.

Sponsoring the linguists is Mrs. Alice Kraft.

Debaters learn to argue in a friendly way

Members of the Debate Club and of the team gained valuable experience in debating and group discussion. World affairs, local matters, and parliamentary procedures were among the topics discussed.

Volunteers from the groups chose subjects in which they were interested. Among the topics that have been discussed are: "Should the United States adopt the essential features of the Russian educational system?" "Should federal aid be accepted for educational purposes?" and "Should the voting age be lowered?" At the first of the year, members attended conferences at Purdue University to learn more about debating.

Debaters are gaining insight into nationally important questions in learning to see both sides of a question.

Officers of the club were: Mike Lewin, president; Janet Graves, vice president; Nancy Northam, secretary; and Gordon Risk, parliamentarian. Mr. Carl DeBard is sponsor of the Debate Club; and Mrs. Marion Dryden is sponsor of the Debate Team.

North Central has the distinction of being one of only two schools in the state with National Defense Cadet Corps as the title of its Army Training group.

Inspection last year reaped a harvest of thirteen awards for outstanding commissioned officers, non-commissioned officers, privates, and riflemen.

Promotions this year went to Tim Steele and Bob Obenchain who became Lieutenant Colonels, with the positions of Battle Group Commanders. Dick Peine, promoted to Major, took over the duties of Drill Team Commander. Newly named Captains Martin Krentz and Chuck Smith became Company Commanders. Cadet SFC Al Marshall headed the Color Guard.

Each year the NDCC sponsors the Military Ball. This year the theme was "Autumn Prelude." Co-chairmen of the dance were Jody Eliason and Tim Steele.

Two "firsts" have been achieved this year. Jody Eliason, sponsor, was awarded the rank of Lt. Colonel, for outstanding service, the first girl to be given this rating. And in a shoot with the other NDCC school, Ft. Wayne Concordia, North Central won the first year's match. This event is planned as an annual affair with a trophy going permanently to a three-time winner.

The aim of Rekamemoh (Homemakers spelled backwards) is to prepare its members for their future roles of housewives and mothers. During the year the group has organized several club projects, one of which was a Halloween Party held for the members during a regular Thursday club meeting. Refreshments, consisting of punch, candy, and homemade cookies, were donated by members of the organization.

To foster a spirit of service, the groups bought groceries to provide a Thanksgiving meal for a needy family on that particular holiday. During the spring of the year, the club planned to organize another service project of benefit to the community.

Because of the loss of two of the officers during the first semester, a new group were elected to preside over the club for the remainder of the year. These included Linda Haislip as president, Becky Greenwood, vice-president, and Brenda Abell, secretary-treasurer. Sponsor of the group was Mrs. Margaret Stout, home economics teacher. The sponsor who originated the club, Miss Carolyn Kleifgan, is spending a year in England, teaching at Ackworth School in W. Pontefract, Yorkshire, England, as exchange for Miss Sheila Lord, spending the year at North Central.

Stamp and Coin members trade and buy

Persons who have collecting for a hobby are usually enthusiastic in the pursuit of their chosen articles. Members of the Stamp and Coin club are no exception to this rule. They have discovered that one of the best ways to further their objectives is to get with other fanciers and exchange information and possessions.

Club meetings are very informal. Members bring their collections to school and compare them with those belonging to others in the group. The activity period is spent in swapping and purchasing stamps and coins with considerable excitement.

Stamp and Coiners were responsible for a display case in upper A wing of the school and periodically changed the articles displayed. Many types of stamps and unusual coins from foreign countries or those with historical significance are provided by members of the club.

Officers for the club during the 58-59 year were Ron Hocker, president, and Bob Mitchell, secretary-treasurer. Miss Ruth Lesley is sponsor of the club.

Comparing collections is great fun. Ron Hocker, and Bob Mitchell discover this as they discuss and admire each other's new acquisitions.

Bowler Norman Heindricks, politely asks Jean Ditzenberger, club secretary, to close the door of his car so that they can leave for the bowling alley.

Bowling members worked in keen competition with each other during the year. The group, which was divided into eight teams, bowled together every Tuesday evening at the Broad Ripple Bowling Alley.

Captains of the eight teams were John Triller, Norman Heindricks, Steve Kabel, Jean Ditzenberger, Jeff Barnett, Carlyle Henry, Sandy Richey, and Bill Iles.

Top bowler in the group was Ed Bailey, who held the club record of 225 for one game and 362 for two games.

During the Christmas holidays, a special tourney was held for members only at the B and Y Bowling Alley, downtown.

Awards were given at the end of the year to the boy and girl having bowled the best games during the club's outings.

Secretary of the club was Jean Ditzenberger. Mr. Henry Harrison is the faculty sponsor.

Members of the Library Club had numerous opportunities to serve fellow students and teachers by performing tasks important to the administration of the school library. These people also learned how to use college and public libraries in preparation for adult life.

To learn more about service, care of books, and management are the objectives of the club. To further this knowledge, many members attended the Indiana University workshop in the summer of 1958. Others went on a field trip to Ball State Teachers College where they were instructed in library work and book mending.

At meetings, book reviews were given by individual members, and reports of summer workshops and regional and state meetings were presented.

Officers were Celia Nicely, president, Phyllis Bettge, vice-president, Patty Bishop, secretary, and Katherine Price, treasurer. Librarians Miss Mary Louise Mann and Mrs. Katherine Wert are the sponsors.

"They said it couldn't be done!" This popular 1959 advertising slogan could be applied to the formation of the Math Club. When it was suggested organizing a group with a membership requirement of a 3.5 scholarship average in math, the opinion was expressed that few would be eligible. To everyone's surprise, 43 people became active members.

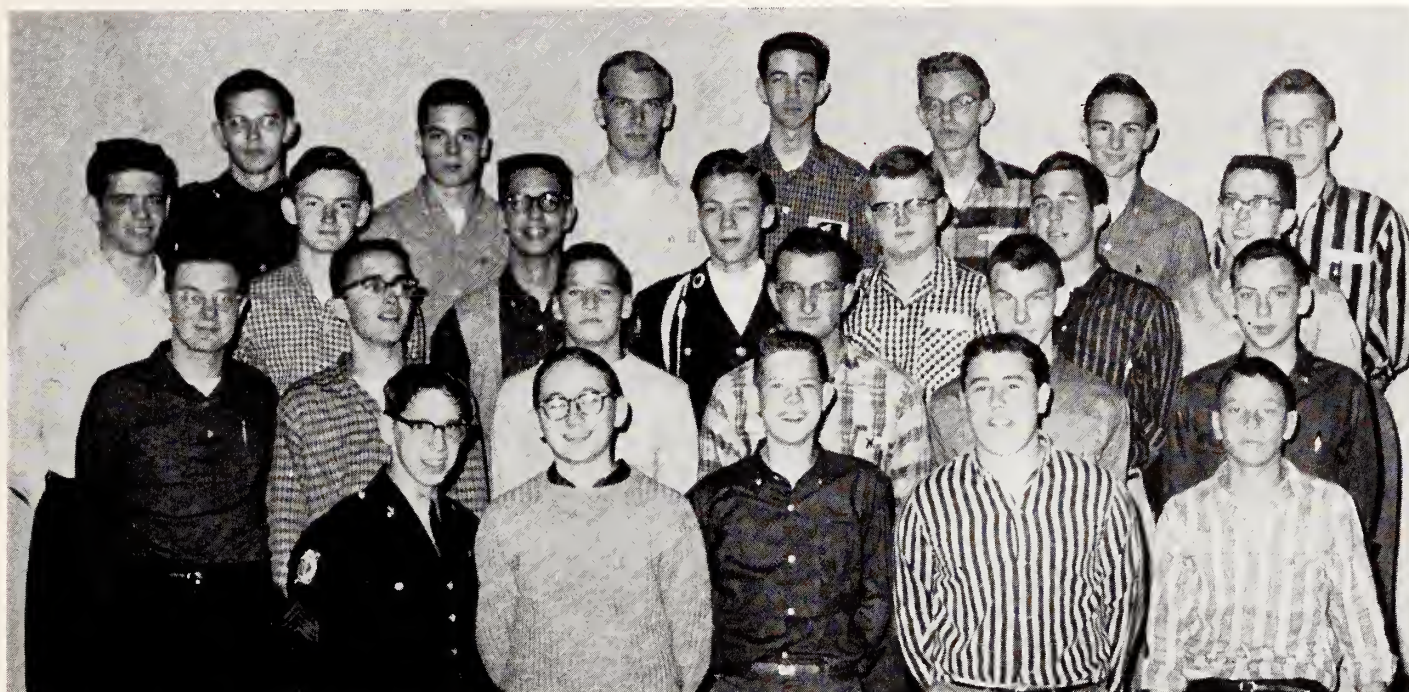

Most of the early meetings were spent in preparing a constitution for the local group in preparation for affiliation with Mu Alpha Theta, a national math club organization. In February, Shortridge High School sent one of their Math Club officers to install North Central's officers and induct new members.

In March, Dr. James Eaves, chairman of the Math and Astronomy Department of Kentucky University, spoke to the group on "A Mathematician's View of the Universe." At another meeting, a speaker explained about rockets.

Each year, West Lafayette and North Central math students compete with one another as preliminary experience to the I. U. Achievement tests. This year, the meet was held in Indianapolis, sponsored by the Math Club. North Central won for the second time.

North Central's Electronics Club was formed to give members a chance to widen their knowledge of a subject that is of prime importance in the world today. Members felt that by gathering together information on all of the varied fields involved in electronics, they would be better able to get a comprehensive, over-all picture of what is being done in this important science.

Club members took over one of the conference rooms for their experiments and concocted some weird exhibits to fascinate passersby. A "Jacob's Ladder" of flame climbing a twisted wire, a luminous Christmas tree, and a magic blaring forth of recorded music as people passed, were three of the window displays.

Field trips to the RCA Tube Plant and the Bell Telephone Company gave them a glimpse of electronics in practical use. At the telephone company, Mr. C. C. Capel, chief engineer, gave a scientific demonstration as he discussed his company's plans for the future.

Allen Shimer served as president, Russ Ferguson, vice-president, and John Ulmer, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Frank Mohr, physics teacher, is the sponsor.

Willing North centralities aid busy teachers

Many students enrolled in study halls donated their study time to work in the different service offices in school. These people aided pupils and teachers by serving as assistants in the general office, the library, the guidance offices, the book store, the cafeteria, the nurse's office, and the science labs. Many of these people found that these positions were helpful in preparing them for their chosen careers.

One of the few clubs in North Central that differs in procedure at its meetings is the Gymnastics Club.

Without any preliminaries, when the group meets in the gym, members immediately change into their working clothes and begin their practice on the trampoline and the gym mats.

Students who joined the newly formed organization work toward developing their ability and skill in the field of gymnastics, under the guidance of Mr. William Smith, physical education instructor.

Because it is an athletic organization, the club does not indulge in extra-curricular parties and games. Instead, members concentrate solely on improving their bodies and minds through good exercise.

Serving the gymnasts as officers during the year were Jack Mendall, Linda Hirt, and Steve Hochman.

Coaches, teams, and players age and mellow with

In their three years of existence, all Panther athletic teams have made prodigious advances. The football squad has placed three men on all-county teams. The basketball five was runner-up in the Marion County tournament in 1958. Cross country has placed men in the state, and has had one regional winner. The wrestling squad has had two county champs and five state regional contenders. The cindermen have produced two county champs and have had several runners-up. The golf team won the city-county match and has placed very near the top in state meet competition. Seasoned racketmen have fallen prey to the Panther tennis squad. College coaches have recruited North Central batsmen, who were outstanding members of Panther teams that have racked-up some of the top nines in the state.

The future holds great promise for all Panther athletics. Squads such as basketball, cross country, and wrestling anticipate their best records yet to date in the coming year and certainly the other sports will be looking forward to new blood to revitalize and renovate the Central teams of the future.

three valuable years of necessary game experience.

Varsity gridmen avert losing season by winning last

After a slow start, losing four straight games, the varsity pigskinners emerged with a 5-4 season record. The finest accomplishment was a win over the Marion County Champion, Southport. Other victories included Elwood, Warren Central, Crawfordsville and Fort Wayne Central. The three-year football record is now 13-12.

In "A" division competition the Panthers tied for a first place, but they did not represent that division in the playoff due to an adverse flip of the coin.

The first four games saw quite a few (four regular varsity players) gridmen on the absentee roster due to injuries ranging from broken collar bones to cases of water on the elbow. All told, 10 varsity men were injured during the season. Only four starting members of the '57 team were holdover starters for the '58 season and this adjustment cost the squad four important games.

Jim Birr and Ronnie Gill were named to the Star's all-county team. Dick Young and Ed Copeland were also given honorable mention. These outstanding individuals, plus all-around team strength, proved a deciding factor in the five straight victories. Next year's varsity squad should be composed of a veteran crop of experienced lettermen with a five game winning streak to build on.

Pre-game tension is shown on Panther faces as they jog out onto the field from the locker rooms. On this hot and humid night, the Panthers lost their first game to Madison Heights.

Those winning their third varsity letter included Jim Birr, Ed Copeland, Chip Wilhoite and Bob Trent.

Players who should see unlimited action next year, barring any unforeseen injuries during the season, include: Steve Orr, Mike Smith, Jimm Light, Jim Kinch, Don Morrison, Moose Krause, Joe Paxton, Mark English, Buster Jameson, Paul Vaughn, Bob Enoch, Jim Birr, Steve Tegarden and Steve Willet. A nucleus of ten out of the 14 are senior gridmen.

With just three seasons under its belt and only 12 games previous experience as compared to the varsity's 25 games, the reserve football teams of the last three years have turned in a 7-4-1 three-year record, certainly a slate that would hold any reserve team in good stead for such limited experience and short duration.

The reserve squad is usually held to small membership, compelling the players who do play to make almost a 48-minute stand with hardly any replacements. This fact, plus the winning over-all record, proves the varsity will have a fine crop stamina-enriched, experience-tested players for its '59 season schedule.

Joe Walsmith and Steve Swindler set sail for points south as a Warren Central Warrior attempts to change their plans. His persuasion was insufficient, as the Reservists triumphed 33-6.

The duet of English and Krause ground this Ben Davis Giant as help arrives in the form of Dick Young, Paul Vaughn, Steve Orr, and Mike Smith.

first N. C. undefeated season, winning 4 of 5

The Reserve football team, coached by Dean Evans and Walt Viellieu, piled up a 5-1 record, their best season to date.

Games with Ben Davis, Noblesville, Lawrence Central, Warren Central, and Speedway were chalked up as victories before the final tilt of the season was lost to Southport by a 14-26 score.

In compiling this record, the Reserves brought their tally to seven wins, four losses, and one tie.

This season, with the most games scheduled so far for the Reserves, provided some tough competition. Nevertheless, the team held five of their six opponents to one touchdown or less, giving fair warning that the varsity will field a strong defensive team next year. Offensively the squad proved their ability by racking up at least two scores per game.

Some of the boys who turned in outstanding performances and will vie for varsity positions next year are Halfbacks Bob Enoch and Steve Swindler, Fullback Joe Walsmith, Quarterback Bert Wilhoite, Center Buster Jameson, and Guard Jim Kinch.

The team was fortunate in that there were no serious injuries to mar their progress and they were at top strength all year.

Senior Dave Newkirk rounds the final marker on the course and starts to pour on the coal as he fashions another of his cross-country wins. Dave will be missed in the 1959 season.

The '58 Varsity season proved the harriers able to rise to difficult occasions when the need arose, but they seemed to snub their noses at easy meets. In the County run they placed second and in the Sectional they were sixth of twenty-five teams. In a big five-way meet they were second.

In the person of Charlie Riley, the squad enjoyed one of the finest coaches in the state of Indiana. This fact, supported by the outstanding performances of Brad Waltman and Dave Newkirk, led the team through the entire season.

Next year's harriers will sorely miss seniors like Steve Jay, Dave Newkirk, and Brage Golding but the 59ers should provide a better record than their predecessors. Brad Waltman and Cliff Lambert will lead the team, and fine underclass performances by Dave Evans, Jim Gregory, Darwin Waltman, Mike Ewing, and Jon Hall should give the team all the depth it will need to place it constantly in the win column.

Varsity letters were awarded to Dave Newkirk, Steve Jay, Brad Waltman, Brage Golding, Cliff Lambert, Jim Gregory, and team manager Danny Johnson.

Netmen gain needed experience for next season

The team of '58-'59 suffered from a lack of experience and team leadership. By the end of the season, the Panthers had the necessary game mileage, a fact which created optimism for next year's scoring record.

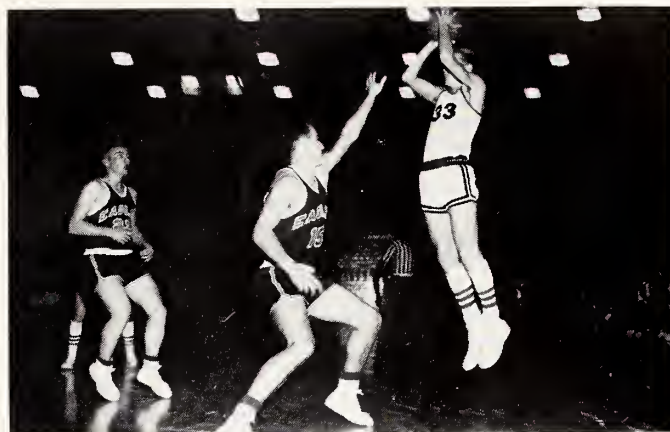

Spirit and ability were definitely possessed by such boys as senior Randy Briggs and junior spark plug Bob Doane. The constant support given the team by a loyal student body gave impetus to good performances.

Seniors Stan Hines, Jim South and junior Bill Johnson led the way in team scoring. Most of Central's rebounds were collected by junior Chuck Poland. Floor generals Bob Doane, junior, and Dave Epperson, senior, plotted the strategy and calmed the team in many difficult situations.

A heart-felt thanks must go to manager Tom Chase for contributing three faithful years to the team.

At the end of the season, varsity letters were awarded Dave Epperson, Stan Hines, Jim South, Jim Birr, Bob Doane, Bill Johnson, Chuck Poland, Whit Warman, manager Tom Chase, manager John Hart and statistician Jim Adams.

Next year should be a pleasant one for the team.

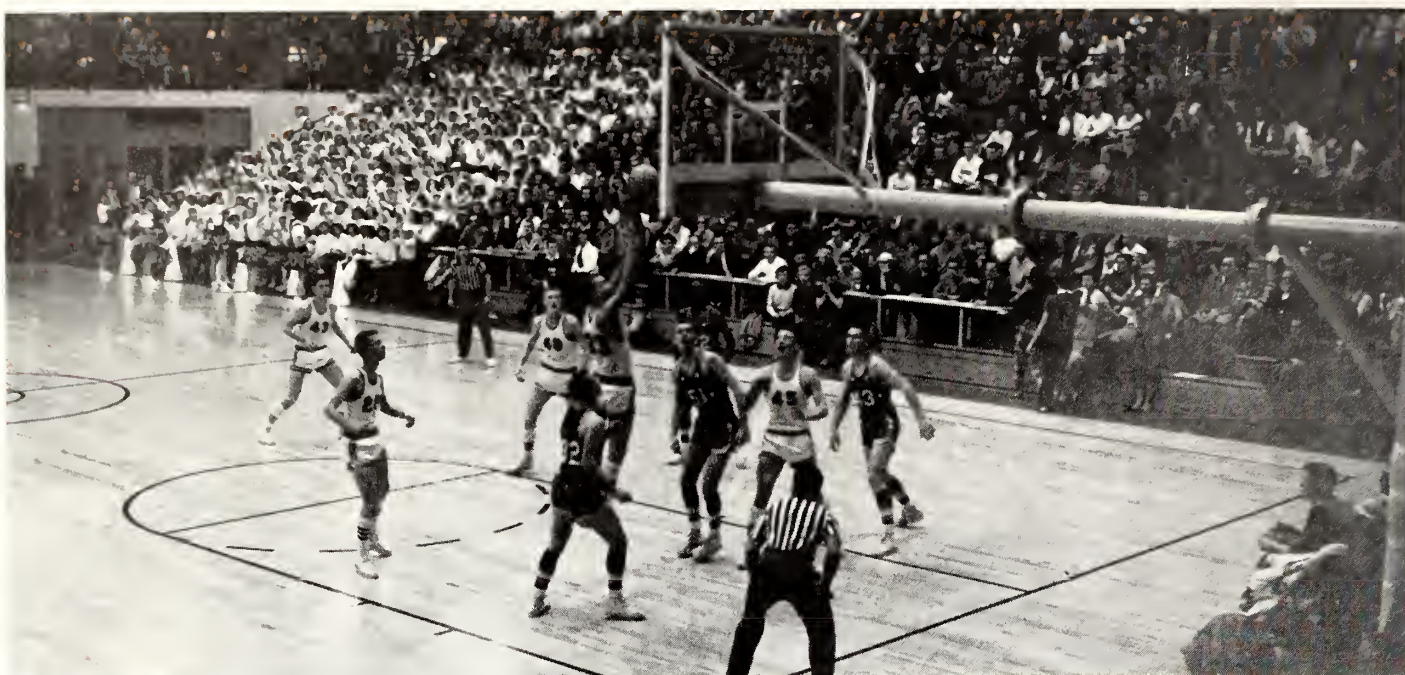

Senior mainstay Stan Hines provides Panther fans another reason to cheer as he leaps into the air to increase the Central lead.

Ripened talent includes juniors Whit Warman, Bob Doane and Gordon Cruickshank. Sophomores who will aid the team are Dick Best, Dave Richards, Wayne Harvey and Steve Willet. Harvey and Willet were injured during the season and did not recover sufficiently to show what they could do, but the '59-'60 season will give these boys a better chance to exhibit their wares.

Senior players give balance, depth and poise

At the close of the 58-59 basketball season, four senior players, Randy Briggs, Jim South, Dave Epperson and Stan Hines, had completed three years of basketball for North Central and had to put their Panther uniforms into permanent mothballs. These boys collaborated to give the team hustle, scoring, floor leadership, and rebounding might. Randy Briggs sparked the squad and was a constant source of inspiration for the boys. He never knew the meaning of the word "loaf"; he always hustled.

Dave Epperson's floor generalship saved many games for the Panthers. His playmaking accounted for more points than his season scoring indicates. Rebounds were the specialty of big Jim South, and he collected more than his share and over. Jim was also noted for his point-getting; he was third leading scorer on the team and the twelfth in Marion County.

To complete the list of skills possessed by this quartet, scoring should be mentioned as a prime contribution. Stan Hines, who had the fourth leading point-average in Marion County, seldom missed the basket in his three years on the Panther Varsity. Often Stan would total well over twenty points and yet play very few minutes in the second half.

Two of North Central's most valuable graduating senior basketball players, Stan Hines and Dave Epperson, demonstrate jump shots that helped the Panthers for three years.

Reserve netmen gain valuable game experience

"Win the hard ones and lose the easy ones" seemed to be the motto of the reserve basketball team. In compiling their season record of 9 wins and 10 losses the boys beat teams such as Southport, Elwood, and Noblesville. The team lost by such margins as one, two, four, and five points to Ben Davis, Zionsville, Kokomo, and Crawfordsville respectively.

Much credit must be given Jimm Light, Gordon Cruickshank, Dick Best, Whit Warman, and Dave Richards for contributing to notable victories. These boys will be counted upon to add their valuable experience to next year's varsity squad.

Injuries were quite a part of the 58-59 season. Steve Willet, promising sophomore, received a broken arm before the season started and was therefore unable to make a showing during the season. Wayne Harvey, another sophomore, sustained a broken leg before the season began and only saw action in three games.

Experience in reserve basketball, gained by many underclass basketball players, should prove a distinct advantage to next year's varsity squad.

Sophomore Dick Huggins drives in for a lay-up as teammate Kurt Behrman sets up a neat pick for him. Players, and plays like this will be an asset to next year's varsity.

Next year holds much promise for grapplers

The varsity wrestling team had a winning season, taking 8 and losing 6. Next year should be even better, with five returning lettermen.

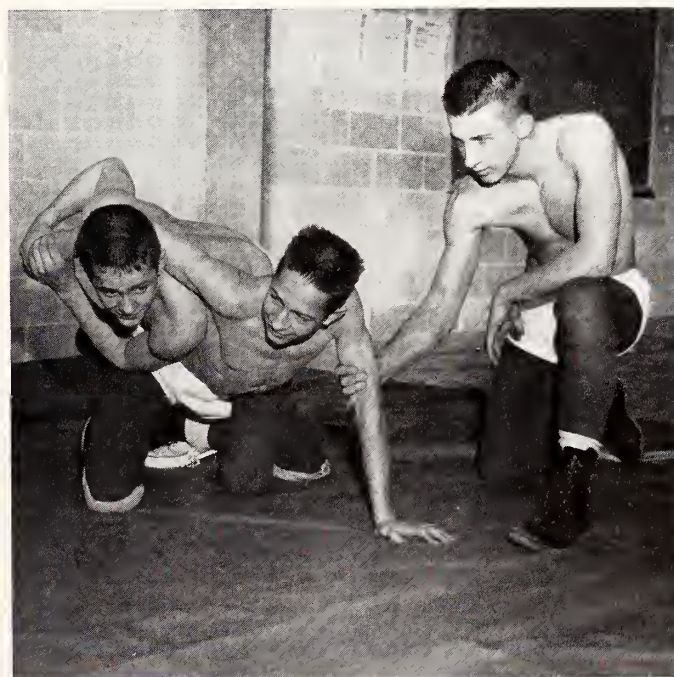

In the Marion County Meet, North Central had Steve Jay placing third; Jack Mendell, third; Larry Braun, third; Phil Shaver, second; Ron Hocker, third; Rol Donie, fourth; and Ed Krause, first.

This year's team had only one senior, Steve Jay, but the '59-'60 season should chalk up a far superior record, since it will have five experienced seniors to aid the Panther cause. These will be Ed Krause, Larry Braun, Jack Mendell, Ron Hocker, and Phil Shaver. Many promising sophomores also saw action this season, including Rol Donie, Mike Gunason, Dormon McShan, and Bob Thomas.

Season victories came over Howe, Madison Heights, Decatur Central, Marion, Logansport, Manual, New Castle, and Franklin Township. The team was hampered in some meets due to injuries sustained by Ron Hocker and Steve Jay.

No matter what the weather, no matter where the game, the varsity and reserve cheerleaders were right on the spot giving their all. Cases of aching muscles and strained lungs were not uncommon to these girls.

With the competent and experienced help of Mrs. Margaret Dunlap, the girls were put through after-school practice sessions the same as the boys on the teams for which they cheered. In both basketball and football sessions, their loud and effective voices could be heard ringing throughout the gym and even down the halls of both wings during the spirited pep sessions held for the teams before important games.

Only one of our varsity cheerleaders is eligible for re-election by the student body next year, as the other three girls will be graduated in June. Good experience is being gained by the four reserve cheerleaders and it is almost certain that some additions to the varsity group will be filled from the ranks of this year's reserve squad.

Seniors, Juniors, Sophomores and Faculty initiate traditions

North Central's enrollment has jumped from an initial 1,083 to an unforeseen high of 1,360 students in three years. The anticipated "war baby" tidal wave is on its way to high school as evidenced by the class division of 322 seniors, 478 juniors, and 560 sophomores. An oversize group is preparing to enter next fall as the new sophomore class.

To take care of the rapid rise in enrollment, the faculty has been increased, also. Fifty-six teachers were "charter members" of the staff; three years later, 72 are on the staff, with more to be hired for next year. A competent guidance staff assists students in long range program planning. Administrative tasks are capably handled by top-qualified men. A group of well trained secretaries and clerical workers manage office details.

and objectives to make North Central a top ranking school.

Dean Smith, who actually started his position as principal of North Central in March, prior to the school's opening, views with pride the accomplishments of his three years of intensive planning and hard work. His job knew no regular hours, nor could he get away from it, even at home. But through it all he remained serene, never faltering in his dream of building the school to its pinnacle of achievement.

Callison Simon, vice-principal in charge of supervising student activities and co-ordinating school policies, with a job that could often be trying, joined Mr. Smith in a concentrated effort to stabilize the school in the shortest possible time. Both men were loyal and steadfastly determined.

Increased staff sparks notable achievements

Everett Light, superintendent of schools in the Metropolitan District of Washington Township, can also point with pride to the results of his leadership in building the district's school system into one that attracts the attention of educators all over the country. During his tenure of office, the number of school buildings has increased from six to ten; the number of faculty members hired, from 168 to 348. Dr. Gene Schwilk, assistant superintendent in charge of instruction, is responsible for the high calibre of curriculae offered in the school system. His worth as an educator bears fruit in the school's scholastic achievement record.

Class of '59 proud of outstanding three years

Nostalgia and sweet sadness marked the climax of carefree days when the senior class of 1959 marched down the aisle to baccalaureate and graduation, reaching a goal long wished for, but greeted with some reluctance when it finally arrived.

Although they had been enrolled at North Central for three years, this was only the second class to graduate from the school. A majority entered as sophomores when the school opened but others joined their ranks later, and some of the original group dropped out before achieving graduation.

Scholastic ability was a noted characteristic of this class. Seventeen persons qualified as finalists in the National Merit Scholarship competitions, four of them being named winners, a percentage that is probably unequalled in any other high school in the country.

Two boys, Tim Steele and Joe Wood, tied for top honors in grade points.

On the extra-curricular side of the ledger, the class of '59 was responsible for originating the sophomore tradition of giving a valentine dance, theirs having the theme "Holiday of Hearts." Members also elected the first varsity cheerleaders, Susie Koffenberger, Joni Tischer, Betty Lankford, Pat Merriman, and Sherry Brooks. The last three remained as yell leaders until graduation.

When they were juniors, the class of '59 elected Ed Copeland, president; Pat Merriman, vice-president; Tom Chase, treasurer; and Bonnie Barr, secretary. As seniors, they elected Joe Wood, president; Joni Tischer, vice-president; Roger Williams, treasurer; and Kathleen Sinclair, secretary.

Mrs. Donna Grubbs and Mr. G. L. Woodruff, sponsors, guided the class through all three years, helping plan the Junior Prom and the Spectacular, and going through a strenuous workout during the last weeks of senior activity.

A "Kid party" at which toys were used for entertainment and later given to needy children; a fifth and sixth hour razz rally; a picnic out of town; a senior grad dance at Westlake; the last football game of the season, senior-dedicated; a wienie roast after the game—all these were dear to the hearts of the '59 seniors.

Three hundred and thirty-two young men and women graduated from North Central one warm June night.

Leading the seniors through a busy year are capable officers Roger Williams, treasurer; Joni Tischer, vice-president; Kathleen Sinclair, secretary; and Joe Wood, president.

Howard W. Sams & Co., Inc.

helps keep Indianapolis ahead in Electronics

* New Howard W. Sams plant to be located in northwest section of Indianapolis will occupy a 40-acre tract.

HOWARD W. SAMS & CO., INC. is a unique organization—the only one of its kind in the world. Our main work involves the study and analysis of electronic devices and developments, and the publication of authoritative information regarding their theory, operation, maintenance and repair.

Our activities have helped to establish Indianapolis as “the Center” for information servicing every segment of the electronics industry; the nation’s TV-radio service technicians; the component parts manufacturers; the electronic parts distributors; the equipment manufacturers.

Ultimately, we serve you through our products. These are largely responsible for keeping your electronic equipment (TV, radio, hi-fi) in proper working order.

HOWARD W. SAMS & CO., INC. serves the Indianapolis community by currently providing jobs for well over 300 skilled employees. Our growth is paced to that of electronics, the country’s fastest-growing industry. We are constantly projecting new plans for expansion of our services and our facilities. This will create more new jobs for Indianapolis and help our city prosper.

The Northerner staff extends a sincere vote of appreciation to those persons who helped make the 1959 book a successful publication.

- to Richard Brier, Capitol Engraving Company representative, for his extra service in the matter of photographic help, layout suggestions, kindly encouragement, and patience.
- Capitol Engraving Company for excellent engravings.
- Earl Loudermilk for beautiful senior portraits, for time-consuming photography of activity groups and faculty, and for friendly cooperation.
- S. K. Smith and their representative, Jack Bundy, who was as excited over the covers as we were—and are.
- Benton Review Publishing Company and Mr. Dave McConnell, whose combined efforts in our behalf turned out the excellent printing job that helps the Northerner make a winning impression.
- Indiana School Pictures for underclass photography.
- and to all members of the faculty who understood our situation and eased our job by being cooperative and friendly.

... and so we come to the end of the road.

This has been a long grind, but it has been fun, too. Sometimes, during this last year, we have felt hopelessly lost in confusion as task after task piled up. At other times we sailed along effortlessly. But through bad times and good we became closer to one another as we worked on a shared project, concentrating on producing a Northerner that would bring honor to our school.

It seemed ages until the 1959 book was on its way to the presses and the 1960 one in the planning stage. When that day arrived, the staff breathed a sigh of mingled gladness and nostalgia; happy to see the end of long hours of work on a project that is more complicated than anyone realizes, and sad that the daily give-and-take, and the friendly cooperation were almost over.

Then came the magic moment that made the whole year worth while. We waited impatiently all afternoon for the truck from Fowler to arrive. When it came we pounced on the first package in sight, ripping it open to get our initial look at the completed Northerner. Our hearts swelled with pride of creation as we leafed through the pages, oh-ing and ah-ing, and occasionally shuddering over the inevitable error or two. We knew then that all of our lives we would be the better for having undertaken a hard job, sticking to it until it was finished, and remaining unwavering trying to do our best.
